Behind the brief statistical report just made public which tells of the a block of New York Central stock amount of New York Central mallway of the par value of $25,000,000.

This transaction, which was one of the railroads began just as it did aroca which is now held abroad there is a most significant incindent in the largest made up to that time by career of the late William H. Vanderblit which this statistical report brought to the minds of the few now was completed, then public announce-femaining who had knowledge of the neident, especially former United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew. At the beginning of the European war there were held abroad twenty-United Vanderbilt had sold a block of stock States Señastor Chauncey M. Depen.
At the beginning of the European war there were held abroad twenty-five millions approximately of New York Central stock. Upon November 1 this had been decreased to about five millions, showing that in the three years and a third of the war the United States has absorbed some twenty test. Support of the states has absorbed some twenty to the states have the states has absorbed some twenty to the states has absorbed some twenty to the states have the states has absorbed some twenty the states has a states has a states has a five millions, showing that in the three years and a third of the war the Uni-ted States has absorbed some twenty millions of the New York Central stock, presumably that which was sold by Mr. Vanderbilt, with the aid of J.

Morgan & Co., nearly all of the stock which Mr. Morgan sold for Mr. Vanderbilt in London. This one transaction added to and, in nes, the Pennsylvania and the timore and Ohio, were decreased since 1914, by amounts comparable with the decrease in the foreign holdings of New York Central stock. fact, made permanent Mr. Morgan's prestige as a consummately able man Traced to Causes.

These statistics suggest that Engduced their holdings of the great block of stock which the late J. P. Morgan sold in London shortly after William H. Vanderbilt succeeded his father, the Commodore, as the absolute owner of the New York Central corporation, Incidentally it may be reported that ometimes when men of finance speak of the unparalleled depreciation in the market value of railway securities, especially of such prime securities as represent the obligations of the New York Central, the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio railway combanies, they refer to this downward movement in part to the sale in this country of great blocks of railroad securities, which at the time the war head have freight and other began were held by English and other investors across the sea.

The incident which the substantially complete absorption by the United stock since 1914 suggests is one which is associated with the first spectacular triumph of the late J. P. Morgan. Mr. Vanderbilt came when he succeeded his father into possession of much the greater part of the stock of the New Central Railway Company.

was widespread comment, times severely critical, based upon the fact that Mr. Vanderbilt owned almost all of the New York Central stock and that he therefore repre-sented the danger which many be-lieved to exist if there were one-man control of a great railway system.

Chauncey M. Depew's Recollection. Shortly after Mr. Depew retired from mervice as United States Senator he spoke in some detail of the transaction in which Mr. Morgan and Mr. Vanderbilt were, upon this side of the At-lantic, exclusively associated with bankers in London. Mr. Vanderbilt, to Senator Depew, was according to Senator Depew, was greatly distressed by the increasing criticism which referred to his one-man power over one of the greatest of American railway systems. Fur-thermore, he was alarmed lest the Legislature at Albany, in view of his almost exclusive holding of New York Central stock, would impose not only immediately heavy taxation, but constantly increasing taxation. He was informed that this disposition was not merely political, but did reflect a strong feeling that prevailed through-was unable to think of any plan by means of which the disposal of the stock could be made without deprein market price. Mr. Depew suggested that Mr. Vanderbilt have a conference with J. P. Morgan. This Mr. Vanderbilt was all the more ready to do because he had been informed while in England of the sucformed while in England of the suc-cess of Mr. Morgan in negotiating in London some $200,000,000 of United States bonds. That was a negotia-tion which first brought Mr. Morgan to the attention of men of finance who were then of great experience and capacity. A conference with Mr. Morgan was held. Mr. Morgan did not know when he was summoned to meet Mr. Vanderbilt, what lay behind the invitation to call at the New York Central office.

What Mr. Morgan Did. Mr. Morgan was not long in finding out the purpose which lay behind Mr. Vanderbilt's invitation. Annually fourteen "opportunities", are made public by the society ten days before Christmas with requests for aid. Among the last-minuts gifts received last night was a check for $300, the donor of which requested his name be withheld. Checks for hundreds of dollars signed by some of the most prominent per-sons in the city, and contributions of connies nickels and dimes from chiliren not very far removed from want themselves were received and made up the total. It is probable additional gifts are still in the mails and the amount over the sum set will be used to keep the families from need for as long a period
